Sueños (Dreams) references the artist's dreams, rich with metaphors and punctuated by the folk lore of her family, particularly her beloved grandfather. The animal world, the land, vast skies of stars inform the stories she tells through her work. "I think back, lovingly, to honey-dripped memories and a youth spent en el monte, but also to (my) dreams and night terrors and how they are so intertwined to my personal lore," says Angelica.

Angelica Raquel Martinez is a multi-disciplinary artist living and working in San Antonio, Texas. She earned her MFA from The University of Texas at San Antonio and a BFA from Texas State University. Angelica was born and raised in border city Laredo Texas, where much of her passion for Folklore and storytelling was kindled. She draws much of her inspiration from her upbringing and culture.
