WOVEN TIME features new and past works by printmaker and mixed media artist, Meredith Dean. Dean generally works in series of variable editions, meaning each print she pulls in a series is unique. She draws upon her affinity for flight and Earth's topography, as well as her observations of the cosmos.

Through the years, Dean's work has consistently explored these fleeting, continuously shifting human experiences of time, heavenly bodies and weather patterns. Using interchangeable sets of carved plates and transparent inks, she translates irreplicable moments of time into multi-layered printed images.

ABOUT THE ARTIST

Meredith Dean is a printmaker, painter, mixed media artist, and was a Senior Lecturer in the Art Department at UTSA for over 20 years. She is known for creating bold, colorful abstract works, and has exhibited across the United States and Internationally. She has served on several important local San Antonio and regional arts boards, and along with her late husband, founded the Santa Reparata International School of Art in Florence, Italy.
